What is Home for a Home?

Home for a Home is a program for Australian's to be able to provide transformational change to vulnerable families across Australia and the Asia Pacific. With every home sold, built or developed in Australia, companies have the power to build or repair a home for an entire family in need of housing for just $3,000.

You can join our committed group of Home for a Home partners for a minimum tax-deductible annual commitment of $20,000.

For every

Meet Elisabet

Elisabet and her husband worked as farm laborer's for very low wages which left them struggling to afford to fix their home. Elisabet would wake every night to drain flood waters out of the house, they had no toilet, and the buzz of mosquitos was constant. Habitat partnered with Elisabet to build her a new home and trained her on financial skills to improve her situation.

"Working together with Habitat has improved my knowledge on so many things. Habitat taught me how to save money and to budget my earnings so I can minimize my debt. I am saving my money to put my son through school. I want him to get the highest possible education so he can make his own money and build his own house. I am a different person now with a comfortable house. I have so many experiences and I also have to prepare myself for the future."

Funds raised through the Home for a Home campaign will go towards home building projects for families like Elisabet's in Vietnam, Cambodia and Nepal.

Why ANSA Homes partners with us

ANSAHomes wanted to be a part of something bigger than themselves. With aligned vision statements, ANSA and Habitat is an ideal partnership. Since 2018, we have impacted the lives of over 30 families who now have a safe and decent place to call home.
